

SOCCKER-TENNIS TRAINING APPARATUS

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A portable game and training apparatus for teaching soccer skills. The apparatus consists of a telescoping horizontal cross bar and two identical support
5 structures for each end of the horizontal cross bar. The telescoping horizontal cross bar connects to the support structures using fittings made of molded plastic, PVC, graphic, or other material known to those skilled in the trade. The apparatus is used for a soccer training game known by many different names including soccer-tennis, foot-tennis, futbol-tennis, over-the-net-soccer, and the like. The apparatus may also be used
10 as a small-sided goal and as hurdles, thus providing soccer coaches and players with multiple training options. The apparatus may be employed indoors or outdoors on any surface. The apparatus can be assembled or disassembled in a short period of time and fits easily in any car, van, SUV, or any other vehicle.
